

What they are saying about disc golf!

Lyle Richardson- Park Manager, Wall Doxey State Park says:

"This sport has become an unbelievable success story for Wall Doxey State Park. Through the sale of disc golf accessories alone, we have increased our revenue at Wall Doxey by 20 thousand dollars per year. We are currently making plans to add a third course. I personally feel there is no better sport suited for state, county or city parks."

Amy Kuras- Lanscape Architect, Parks Planning & Development Department, City of Ann Arbor, MI says:

"In many ways, the sport is an ideal recreation opportunity for the Parks department as well; the course is inexpensive to install and maintain, and provides opportunities for a wide variety of users. It was a good 'bang for the buck!"

Alan W. Beaver- North Region Park Manager, Mecklenburg County Parks and Recreation in Charlotte, NC says:

"Currently we have seven (7) courses, with two being 36 hole lay-outs and one 9 hole course.

The course designer provided the design expertise and communication to the Department. Most of the courses were built on unfunded park areas or in less desirable park land areas including creeks, remote trails, on elevated land, ravines, power lines, rock areas and other similar type features. These are premium locations to design a challenging, fun course. These are also the most challenging for the traditional park amenities such as ball fields to be designed thus leaving many of these areas undeveloped for years.

With this activity it gives the parks an added sense of security to others in the park during non-peak times."

Bill Brekeen- Manager of Tishomingo State Park Says:

"The Mississippi State Park System presently boasts disc golf courses at nineteen of its twenty-five state parks...Disc Golf is an excellent outdoor recreational sport, great for families, inexpensive, provides good physical exercise and is a very multi-faceted game. It is one of the greatest lifetime fitness sports available.

I strongly recommend a professional be involved on the front end to prevent problems that may occur later on.

The present growth rate of disc golf is amazing and is the envy of the sports promotion and tourism industry. I encourage everyone to get on board. It will only get bigger."

Lon VanDeusen- Parks Division Manager for Rapid City, SD says:

"Our recently expanded Jackson Park Disc Golf course has become one of our most used outdoor recreation facilities in our park system. The Jackson Park area accommodates disc golf, picnicking, soccer practice, and leisure walking without serious conflicting use"
